ANG 352 ENGLISH-CANADIAN LITERATURE I

This course is for undergraduates and presumes the capacity to read the materials in the original and to write a term paper in competent English.

Objectives and Content

The aim of this course is to provide a survey of English Canadian writing from the beginning to 1945. Writers to be discussed include Catharine Parr Traill, Susanna Moodie, Mary Ann Shadd, Josiah Henson, the Confederation poets (Charles G.D. Roberts, Archibald Lampman, Bliss Carman, Duncan Campbell Scott), Lucy Maud Montgomery, Sinclair Ross, Stephen Leacock, modernist poets (F.R. Scott, A.J.M. Smith, A.M. Klein, Dorothy Livesay), Morley Callaghan, and Hugh MacLennan. Historical background and some literary debates will be taken into consideration.

Procedure

Lectures and classroom discussion. Students will be expected to read materials from the anthology and further required texts listed below, and should be able to ask and answer questions in each class about the texts under study.
